INTRODUCTION

We exist in a world of virtual system, division, hierarchy and 'the 1%' wealth inequality. We are all clambering to shine, conform, define and achieve, often uncertain of how successful our choices will be and where we'll end up.

When your parents asked you as child what you wanted to be when you grew up, you no doubt had eccentric dreams and great plans of becoming an astronaut, only for a more practical path to be realised.

However, what if I told you that you could have been a great astronaut and, if not a great astronaut then, perhaps, the greatest

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us physicist or mathematician to aid the greatest astronaut?

Don't worry, I'm not about to tell you that you can be anything you want to be through an altered mind-set because it's my understanding that humans are physically designed, not philosophically. An altered mind-set can of course be rewarding, but it's unlikely to provide a viable long-term or more successful existence than the one we are naturally predesigned to lead.

Every day we see people step into roles, take on positions of power and form questionable relationships. In most cases it's an organic best-fit and proves worthy but, in others, it can be based on incorrect, unethical or immoral choice. If the latter, Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us tread carefully, for an unjust fit could result in stagnant or failing teams, collapsing organisations, expensive divorces, divided families and even illness.

To avoid the wrong path, this book is an essential tool when making key decisions relating to people around you, working for you and indeed yourself. Built around a magnetic based code, our theory aims to deliver a lot more success and happiness to a lot more people, leading to a better distribution of wealth and hopefully no more 1%. Essentially, life's purpose and direction is magnetic and humans have a predesigned electromagnetic fate, which must be realised to achieve success.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

Paying homage to many physics-based studies such as Hans Fromme (1957), we have looked into the importance of magnetite found in the brain and established a magnetic code which epitomises simplified reasoning for human behaviour. It is effectively a matrix for why human purpose is magnetic. When the code is used to analyse individuals and teams, it reveals the magnetic predisposition, an energy type, of which we can be only one of five. Ultimately, each type defines a magnetic fate.

When energy between people is said to be raw, palpable, chemical or drawn, the magnetic code is why. It is the reason we sink or swim in certain roles and relationships, why the Kardashians have dominated the social media world, why

Branson makes a great CEO, why the Pope was elected, and why Steve Jobs and Bill Gates are simply, Steve Jobs and Bill Gates. Before you begin your magnetically fated journey, I should point out that there are times when we are all attracted to a shiny penny, the most beautiful person in the room or the CEO's panoramic office but what you want and what you need are two very different things. Going off track or altering your magnetic path can prove problematical. You need to be prepared to ask yourself, would you rather be a lousy captain or an excellent scrum half?

If you could establish your own best fit from birth, could find the right partner to walk beside you, the best career for you and were able to guide your children down their own

successful paths, would you be interested?
And what if you could create the most successful sales or sports team of all time?
I thought so. It's time to accept your fate.

ELECTROMAGNETISM & HUMANS – The Technical Bit

“Matter consists of electrically charged particles and is to be regarded itself as part, in fact the principle part, of the electromagnetic field, and electric energy is therefore the fundamental origin of our entire physical world.” -

Albert Einstein

The Earth is a magnet. Magnetism is caused by the way molecules are arranged in the magnet substance. The molecules are magnetised by the way the electrons rotate inside the atoms.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

The North and the South Poles are its ends. Magnetite, for so long believed to be magic stones, freely held, would automatically turn until one end pointed north and the other south. This led to the invention of the compass. Dr. William Gilbert in 1600 was able to explain for the first time why the points of a compass pointed north and south. It was, he proved, because they were attracted to the North and South poles of the biggest magnet of all – the Earth. The two ends of a magnet have different kinds of magnetism. This ensures that one end always points north and the other south. The strength of magnetism at the ends is always stronger than in the middle. If you were to take an iron rod and point one end towards the North and downwards and hit it a single blow with a hammer it would become Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us magnetised. This is because the molecules in the rod when hit become shaken up and immediately become split and attracted to the nearest end of the rod. There is the recognised “Law of Poles” which states: Like poles repel each other, and unlike poles attract each other. If the N poles of two magnets are brought close to each other they push apart. The same is true for the S poles of two magnets, they also repel one another. But if the N pole of one is brought together with the S pole of another they are strongly attracted to each other.

And the Earth magnet can be seriously affected by the cosmos. The Earth’s magnetic field can be disrupted when a large number of electrified particles from the Sun reach the Earth. Sunspot activity often Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us precedes this disturbance, which is known as a magnetic storm. Solar flares, when the sun throws out large blasts of flaming gases, also cause magnetic storms on the earth about two days later. This can cause magnetic compass needles to move erratically and can also cause severe interference to communications systems.

As we now know crystals of magnetite, as well as having been found in bees, birds and animals, is in the brain of Man. This means Man is subject to the same magnetic fluctuations as the Earth itself. More surprisingly these magnetic crystals have even been found in bacteria such as magnetospirillum, through investigations of biomagnetism, which first began in the 1960's. The purpose is still under scientific investigation at the time of writing but it is believed they act as magneto-receptors which give us the ability to link to the earth's magnetic polarity/field.

Magnetoreception is the ability of the receiver through magnetite to align with the Earth's magnetic field. We know, for instance, that it is fundamental in the navigational ability of birds. Many animals such as turtles, bears, sharks, whales and man amongst many others are known to have this magnetic 'sense'. Also insects such as honeybees have it. It is found in different parts of the receiver. For example, it is in the beaks of birds, Humans, similarly, have it in the ethmoid bone of the nose. But curiously we also have it next to the pineal gland in the center of the brain. The question as to why can be answered in the observation that magnetite is embedded in the cellular membrane of the neurons of bees so that when magnetite aligns with the Earth's magnetic field, 'induction' causes a current to cross the membrane which depolarises the cell.

Technicalities aside, here is the important part. Given the time of our birth we become 'polarised' or aligned to the Earth's field at that time - forever!

We can further appreciate what magnetism means to us with a small experiment. Simply pour some iron fillings over a glass standing on a piece of magnet and tap the glass lightly. The fillings will arrange themselves into curved lines from one end of the magnet Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us to the other. They radiate from both ends, curve back and meet the lines from the other end. The area in which the magnet attracts is the field of force. Surprisingly, it is similar to the way in which human cells divide. Human cells are composed of chromosomes, which, in turn, are the containers of our genes. When a cell is ready to divide, the chromosomes cluster together in the middle, they split lengthwise, forming two sets of halves, which are then pulled apart and become the centre of a new cell.

This is similar to what occurs with a magnet in that the molecules are clustered together in the middle and a jarring effect splits them into two where they congregate at either end of the pole, north to north and south to south.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

Once the pole has been magnetized it remains so even if it is cut in half. Chromosomes appear to behave exactly the same as the magnetic lines of force. In a process known as mitosis the cell divides equally into two identical cells. The chromosome pairs come together in the middle of the cell and split themselves lengthwise into two identical parts. They then become attracted to the centrosomes on the opposite ends of the cell, which splits into two identical cells and the whole process starts again in each of them. Each new cell, however, consists of identical chromosomes and genes. So, at the time of the mitosis of the first cell the electromagnetic force field indelibly stamps it with the blueprint that will link it to the ray of creation throughout the holder's lifetime.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

We are subject to the same outside influences as everything else on the planet. Our cells, which are continuously being replaced, are going through the magnetic process but the original cell is the original lodestone and all the cells will follow its determination. These cells matter little when they are in the legs or the arms but they do matter when they are in the brain where electromagnetic energy emanates from.

Hammerhead sharks have sensors in their wide faces, which can pick up the electromagnetic pulse from several miles away as if they were lights going on. These electric signals given off by all living creatures are called bio-electricity. Extensive research has shown that the living organism carries electricity, and bodies “consist of Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us currents, semi-conductor diodes, electric charge potentials and a complex mega-circuit composed of several, smaller circuits”.

It is apparent from fundamental research such as the above that life purpose is magnetic, trying to pull you towards the person you are and the life you're meant to lead. The sooner you recognise its importance the sooner life will take a positive turn.

Important note:

There is no significance in the actual placement of the symbols. For example, Male Aquarian born in the year of the cat is (+ + - -) but that is no different than a female Gemini born in the year of the Goat (+ - + -) or someone else who is (- + + -) or (+ - - +) in regards to soulmate or magnetic code. Once the symbols are established, their combination is their purpose not their juxtaposition. Hence (2+/2-).

THE POWER OF FIVE

The earth has five continents, five oceans and five lines of force, and we, as human beings have five senses, five fingers, five toes and five extremities to the core body. In addition there are five major circles of latitude on the earth – the Arctic and Antarctic circles, the Equator and the Tropics of Cancer and Capricorn. So, it comes as no surprise that in the discovery of the magnetic code we find there are only five magnetic polarity types of human being.

As a star in the universe forms, it comes with a point of reference, a dimension. Humans and animals are the same. For humans, our dimension is the year and month we were Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us born. By referencing your dimension on the polarity table provided at the rear of the book you will identify your polarity type, which can be mapped on the five point star system and described in later chapters.

FOUR TRANSMITTERS

From battlefields to business, (+ + + +) types like ‘order’ and respond well to seeing everything in its place. They are patient and can be stubborn, which is another word for determination. They are open and friendly – friendly to everyone. Very ‘surface’, they are ‘people’ people and love getting ‘stuck in’ and working hard. They have incredible Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us energy and they appear to have a child-like honesty about them and their dealings with others.

Oddly, not many of them ever do rise to be the one in charge and I think this is the reason – they can't hide their honest endeavours to do what is often necessary. They often say things they shouldn't. This can annoy others; hence, their rocky road to the top. But when they do reach the top, they can be tenacious, unflappable and, sometimes, ruthless.

It would be a mistake to think that (+ + + +) type will have a blazing personality. They may have. They may not. Take, for example, J. Craig Venter, the man behind the human genome project, which promises Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us to transform our lives in the near future. He is (+ + + +). He does not have a blazing personality. In fact he comes across as a highly personable, nice, reserved, softly spoken, subdued individual. Now, compare him to another of this electromagnetic field (EMF) type, Oliver Reed. Here we have the seemingly ultimate extrovert – loud, brash, unbridled thrusts of energy and occasional menace. Another (+ + + +) was the great actor, Richard Harris, who was like both of the aforementioned at different times in his life. Despite their learned self, scratch the surface of the (+ + + +) type and the innate self is a serious, dedicated and committed party to whatever task they undertake.

The pace and direction of the electromagnetic pulse makes these people Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us thrive on expression and feed off holding court. They have no 'receivers' (-), just 'transmitters' (+). It gives them great energy, enthusiasm and drive in their behaviour, seeking no respite or withdrawal from the daily challenge.

Strangely, they think they are quite laid back whereas, in truth, they are quite pushy in doing anything and can sometimes be like an express train through a station. They have a

superabundance of, unrestrained, nervous energy bubbling just underneath the surface like a volcano, ever ready to erupt. This can sometimes cause them to hurt or give offence and, in turn, be hurt or take offence, but their intention is the opposite – they just want to say it like it is.

They reach out to others and see everyone they meet as 'new hope'. They are from the 'shoot first and ask questions later' brigade, full of energetic derring-do, and carelessness with it to boot. They will give freely of themselves in communicating with others. Later, in their quiet moments, they may question themselves, worried that they may have offended someone in some way unnecessarily. Then, without retaining any malice, they will shrug their shoulders and Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us act as if “these things happen” and accept their fate. They love company and thrive on new relationships. They energise in crowds but especially so when it is new company. In turn, it energises them more. If the company is returning the energy then it becomes even more intense.

(+ + + +) types are big in their bearing and make grand don't-ignore-me type entrances to events. The females, vivacious, the males lively, they are sharp, quick and perceptive. Their energetic minds will subtly, but swiftly, discern the situation they are in. On the other hand they are given to self-deception and can appear to be shallow or light but what do you expect from the ultimate exhibitors. These are the utmost in individuality but they can be manipulative Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us and callous from time to time. They make extremely cold enemies but warm and protective friends – however long it lasts, which sometimes is not long. They blow hot and cold with their relationships faster than day turns to night.

As they can't be controlled, they always tend to be in danger of going over the top in their behaviour. Above all, they love to impress. Certainly, we all like to be liked and they, of course, do, too, but it can at times feel like an inconvenient feature of the human condition to them and it is quickly discarded without care if and when they lose control. Despite their dedication to the purpose, they can change their minds more often than the weathermen. Their attention has to be constantly corrected as they cannot hold a Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us steady course for long. But for the time they are dedicated to their purpose, like heat-seeking missiles.

And they aren't always team players either, remaining somewhat self-centred. They like to be the boss. But they are highly personable, colourful individuals in group situations. They are uni-directional, expecting things to be done "their way". Yet, for all that, they can very easily withdraw from the fray and happily go it alone.

The key issue for this EMF (electromagnetic field) polarity type is there is no receiver (-) in their make-up, no inlet valve. Without a receiver there can be no absorption of external influences. That does not mean (+ + + +) types are not affected by external Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us influences. What it means is that they do not absorb, gestate and exchange like the rest of us. They simply can't. Instead, they use what they hear or see to parry back with, like a bat striking a ball. Another way of understanding this is in observing what happens to a stage performer, especially a comedian, when confronting a very appreciative audience. Effectively, what they 'pick up' stimulates them but it does not slow them down or make them deviate off-course. They are target-driven, focused, obsessive even.

It is said that if you want to achieve a goal you have to imagine yourself doing it first. That way you become geared to the objective. Well, (+ + + +) types are extremely single-minded and, in every case, they will achieve what they set themselves. In that way, they are innately successful. No matter what they decide the purpose of their existence to be at any given time, they will wholeheartedly commit themselves to it. This is a real talent that they have and we can see it as the essential characteristic in many a figure on the world stage, some of which are listed at the end of this section.

On the face of it they may appear to be part of the crowd. However, they are never part of the crowd. They are soloists. They stand apart from rather than as a part of groups even whilst being within them. They bounce off people rather than integrate with them. This can give out a lonely, stand-off position in their dealings with others whilst you will always see them desperately strive to appear to be engaged with everyone if that is Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us the requirement. Others, however, sense their real position, which is disinterest in anything but their own. It is not quite selfishness, rather self-centredness.

Remember, they do not have the capacity 'to receive', so it is not calculated.

They can be unusually generous. The purpose can sometimes be to 'buy' into the other person, a fast track to find their flaws. As part of their polarity, they will latch on to people from time to time and be totally devoted to them. They are known to sometimes seek to control or manipulate them because their way is the only way. This always results in stress. Once the flaws appear they can switch to a completely opposite view of you and the generosity Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us immediately ends. This can make them appear to be cold and shallow and can cause enormous disputations around them. Loyalty is not their strongest suit; intention is.

It may be good or it may not be. That does not necessarily matter to (+ + + +) types. They can be dangerous with what they say. They do what they do and say what they say without real consideration - nor for the benefit of - their own position. As they get older they realise it may be better to temper their outspokenness occasionally than risk another fight.

When they have certain natural artistic talents, they can be incredible at producing the goods. Again this is because (+ + + +) types are driven. They can't stop Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us themselves from doing what they do and the outcome of that is more of the same talent repeated over and over. Their dedication to their task is simply like breathing to the rest of us. Only they like to decide when it's over. And when they do they are just as dedicated at turning their back on it.

That said, they do not often come to the fore. Fewer world leaders than you might expect have come from this type. Only three out of 15 British prime ministers and five out of 43 U.S. presidents have had this magnetic field; and just one in Russia – Boris Yeltsin. It is, possibly, because they are very honest about who and what they are and some types do not like being disarmed by their openness. It makes them appear weak.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

In other arenas you find they are the driving force behind the activity and, although they favour taking the lead, either don't or are stopped by those around them. The reason for this is that the polarity is strong and - the way it works for them - so powerful that those around them instinctively flinch when they see them reach for power. This, in turn, makes (+ + + +) types try to subdue their overt expression of apparent thoughtlessness in excluding others from their processes to achieve their target. No matter what the position is that they are in and no matter how many people surround them, they are soloists at heart.

When they fail, they retreat with resigned acceptance, sort themselves out quickly and bounce back as if nothing had happened.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

When they truly head their own domain, they are quietly demanding enough to be respectfully revered by those around them in a God-like manner. When that doesn't happen they prefer to disconnect themselves from that person or those people. They essentially like to be told how well they are doing to dispel the doubts that naturally arise when left alone.

This EMF type are great survivors. They can take whatever comes their way with a pinch of salt. Unlike their polar opposites, (- - - -) types, who have fantastic powers of absorption, the (+ + + +) types are shielded from all outside forces. So, when life gets hard or tricky or they are faced with some degree of annihilation, the slings and arrows simply glance off them like they are Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us protected by an invisible shield. And really a force-field is what it is because all their magnetic energy is directed outwards so nothing can penetrate it.

The direction of the (+ + + +) energy is ever outward and this underlies the conditioning that makes the personalities achieve what they do. Personality is arrived at by a combination of influences including, background, education, acumen, astrological signs, gender and many other things. Given the make-up of those elements, you then have the level of achievement, and the arena in which the individual operates, to contend with. All of these are masks to the code. In terms of polarity, (+ + + +) types all behave the same way. This 'way' is the engine to their machines and they can, and do, Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us achieve great things and behave in exactly similar ways with each other because of their polarity type. Regardless of profession, wealth or upbringing, all will display the same tendencies, cause the same reactions and react the same way to the world around them. It can of course be masked by the materialistic world a moment of conscious 'best behaviour' but put any of these in a sports field with a ball, in a specific position, with the right positioning of teammates and I'll tell you the outcome!

When they meet others who have the same polarity type they inevitably clash with them. Like trying to put two magnets with the same polarity together, it can't be done. They repel one another. They push each other apart. It would be evident if you were to find more Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us than one in any group. If you do find more than one in the same company, it is either because there is no other way. These are circumstances where there is no way out and the result will be weeping and gnashing of teeth. The potential for a lot of feuds and emotional eruptions, disruptive behaviour patterns and competitive exchanges will inhabit the environment.

That said, (+ + + +) types always show a devotion to family; a loyalty, which will be subjected to the same demands as any other. 'My way is the only way'. They may fall out with some family members from time to time but they will always be drawn back by their need to fulfil their devotion to what they perceive as one of their life targets. And once they have aimed at a given target, that's it, they are locked on.

In summary, they are relentless, unstoppable, tenacious and forthright. If you need to get something done and you happen upon a (+ + + +) type, count your blessings because you have hit the jackpot – it will get done; and quickly. In fact, so quickly, it will probably make your head spin. Whether they do it themselves or arrange for it to be done by someone else they will become your captain. They can cut through the dross like a hot knife through butter.

Such powerful beings, they fearlessly confront the issues in a way the rest of us can only envy. That said, their commitment to the achievement is unequalled yet it is that Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us very thing that makes them so difficult for others to be able to get along with them. They push, push, push and sometimes find it hard to listen to others. They have such rigid faith in themselves that they can overcome anything so well that they easily dismiss consideration they might otherwise give to anyone else's thoughts on the matter. They so much want to be part of the group but they can never be. They are always going to be alone as the pinnacle serving others. If I could give them a gift it would be the gift of at least one Receiver (-). Without this they remain apart from rather than a part of whatever process they are engaged in but what wonderful drivers they make to ensure things get done.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us
Energy is one thing they have in abundance, notwithstanding a medical condition, albeit temporary or permanent. This is their electromagnetic pulse. One enhances the other. They also have a lot to say and are not easy to restrain when holding court. Even the quiet ones of this type can let you have it with a quick glance. The energy pours out of their eyes like a ray-gun. In simple terms, these people, overall, have an intensity of character - the energy emission is non-stop. Let's dance!

In personal relationships

A (+ + + +) meeting another (+ + + +) for the first time will be very gratifying for both. Naturally eclectic, they will converse about anything and everything, energising each other to burnout and 'burnout' is a given.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us
(+ + + +) and (+ + + +) is a relationship whereby the energy is routed in the same direction but not towards one another. Like trying to push two magnets together they actually push each other away. They are initially attracted to one another and, indeed, in small doses, make fantastic combinations but invariably they realise they are going nowhere as the flow of energy is going in the same direction anyway so no effort needs to be made. Ennui sets in, as neither of them has a (-) to allow the energy to exchange places. Therefore the capacity to receive is only an impression they give to enable them to pick selected ammunition from you to retake the authority of their exchange.

Their relationships with one another can be summed up in the old adage “hail fellow, well Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us met”. They can be the life and soul of the party but it’s all surface. There is a distinct lack of substance. The promising balance initially found in their own type’s company dissipates in time leaving them with a feeling of “what next”? They can, and do, often become frustrated by one another’s company. We’re talking two different rails of the same rail track – going to same place and maybe, simultaneously but, definitely, independently.

(+ + + +) with a (- - - -) will begin in the same fashion with great attraction but the (+ + + +) will tire out before the (- - - -) ever tires of soaking up their energy. This leaves the (+ + + +) clamouring for more ability to satisfy the demands of (- - - -).

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

Whilst this situation is better for (- - - -) it is less than perfect for the (+ + + +) character. They need a more responsive partner and, whilst they enjoy the fact that the (- - - -) absorb their every living breath, they intermittently crave more of a threat coming back even when they know it will cause them hassle. But this is the best electromagnetic configuration for the four transmitter types.

As for being with those with (+ + + -) types, they are not magnetically destined to succeed but they love one another for the energy. There can be an awful lot of sparks. Neither side gives way in close combat but the relief point is in the one (-) that allows for the necessary breathing space. Still, the (+ + + +) will continue to blaze a trail whatever the outcome. They overwhelm the three Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us transmitter types who are no shrinking violets. There is not enough to absorb the positive and highly dynamic energy flow of the four transmitter types. There needs to be more receivers. In relationships of this type they usually feel the need to be independent. The (+ + + -) over-react from time to time as a result. This resistance is vital to the four transmitter types, like a cat with a mouse, which is why they court danger in seeking out others with the same or nearly the same energy levels as themselves.

Those with a balance of (+ + - -) are also well able to deal with (+ + + +) types. Again, though, there is a lot of dicing with death, and for the fulsome, driving and dangerously living (+ + + +) that is fine but it is very tiring for the other party who retreat, and need to Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us retreat, often to recover, after which they come back very happily for more. On the whole, this is a very sparky relationship, which can work, but not without the odd thorn.

The same is true for their relationships with (+ - - -) types. But this is like the cat playing with the mouse purely for fun. The cat just wants to play and unless he becomes bored – which is most often what happens – he will kill the mouse but absent-mindedly or dismissively without any lucid intention. In simple terms (+ - - -) are marginally a more attractive proposition for (+ + + +) types because they are three parts receivers and can soak up the light of the four transmitters whilst at the same time being able to spit

back occasionally with the power of their one transmitter that can give as good as it gets.

The best relationship (+ + + +) types can opt for will be with their complete opposites, the four receiver types (- - - -) but, frankly, they probably wouldn't recognise it because the latter absorb everything and, as I have said, I know how much they love danger rather than comfort, which they will not get from those with four receivers. They are magnetically, a Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us perfect match but the key to magnetic success is most often found when there is one extra transmitter, i.e. (+), between the two. It acts like a kicker. Here, there is no excess; one pushes, the other pulls.

Whilst (+ + + +) types should opt for (- - - -) types, and the latter can take all they have got, I find the (+ + + +) types will actively seek others with lots of plusses even though they are bad for them because they are more stimulating to their magnetic type because of the sparks. They need to be unchallenged whilst secretly desiring the opposite. Overall, while the latter two, the (+ + - -) and (+ - - -) are their best bet, I believe (+ + + +) who love danger, will favour the buzz and guaranteed masochism that will come from one of their own (+ + + +) which is as rare as snow on a hot tin roof. No, (+ + + -) is what they go for preferring to crush the spirit of a (+ + + -) and forever be in the wars

FOUR RECEIVERS

(- - - -)

Let's be absolutely clear, we are talking serious inductive power here. Whereas those Type 1's with their four transmitters (+ + + +) who blast and blow, and huff and puff their way to your attention, four receivers (- - - -) quietly, purposefully and powerfully just draw it from you. A great team captain, they are supreme at appearing benign and masking

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us
their vice-like grip of power over everything around them.

(- - -) means these people can take all you have got and more. They could be incredibly manipulative with their power to absorb but it is so great it actually overwhelms any desire they may have to use it for their own personal ends.

What we have here is beguiling innocence, smiling, inviting; drawing strength from your strength. They are so warm and easy-going you find yourself almost wanting to reach out and put your arm around them or pat them on the back. Careful when you are doing it though. Be certain in your mind it is for the right reasons. If it is not, they will find you out

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us and you'll know what it's like to be on the end of a quick bite.

Truth is all to these most individual, self-supporting, somewhat mesmerising types, they are very sensitive to their surroundings and quietly judgmental. They appear to be 'other-worldly' and all knowing. If ever there was a case to show the power of understanding that the opposite of what you see is what you get, this is it. You probably think that because there are no transmitters in their make-up, there can be little energy to recognise, but how wrong you can be. Oddly enough, in their heads they have truly the biggest personality of all. What would you expect when they are able to receive so much they can take some of it, mimic it and throw it back with spades – and all without so Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us much as causing a blink to their receivership! As with all duality, everything has an opposite and often that opposite is the opposite of what you expect. For example, (+ + +) give the impression of being strong and powerful but in fact they are more like the lion in The Wizard of Oz. On the other hand, you might think (- - -) would be withdrawn and weakish but they are the ones who are immensely strong, powerful and resilient, like Dorothy!

They love the bright lights. They need to be in the spotlight or wherever the energy comes from. They love company and happily appear to be part of the group but, make no mistake, there is only one shining star. They can take their place at the back but, believe me, they are working their way through to the front.

Don't be fooled. They are intensely private individuals and, as a group, they are frighteningly objective-driven much like the characters in the film The Children of the Damned! They can patiently wait for the moment when what they have conceived should happen, does happen – no matter what the setbacks.

They are absolutely primed and aimed at providing for the best interests of people in general. They, really, really do care about the common good. They are extremely calculating and deterministic. The light they are given is never enough to match their power of absorption so the result is that Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us those around them must constantly work on their commitment to achieving whatever may have been agreed between the parties. Oh, it won't matter a jot what may develop during this process, whether you've been a clown or a prince or made mistakes of gigantic proportions. They will barely blink providing you show, and they continue to recognise, that essentially, you are still on the beam. But fall off that beam for any reason and it's over. Four receivers means they will suck you into the wilds of outer space and you will never be heard of again. Nothing can annihilate you faster.

The real power here is that they are very serious about life and responsibility. They expect the same from you but know that it is unlikely you will show such a fine trait, so they make giant allowances for you. You, of course, unsuspecting, get to meet or come into the company of one of these dearies and they allow you to behave in your usual moronic way. Indeed, they'll even applaud you as you go out of your way to impress them with your box of smarts. And you will happily think you are doing just that. Then you might tipple over into disappointment for them should you fail to deliver. And nothing, but nothing, will get your head taken off faster than that little mistake. However, let's say you've made it into the inner sanctum first, well, okay, you'll survive but let me assure you, you're being watched.

These souls are very tuned in to local conditions. They are also filled with bonhomie and good humour. There seem to be few grey areas with them. They can attract, detract and distract in equal measures. They can be very sensitive to the vibrations around them and can be subdued by them. They are as independent as you can get and, whilst they emit a persona of care and deep appreciation for things within their purview, they are immeasurably strong in confronting the worst.

“The one’s who aim to fight, well, we aim to please” could well be their motto for that is exactly the mindset of (- - - -). They accept the inevitable, and bravely. They are controlling, influential and like to understand their situation only to the extent that it enables that control to be exerted. There is a tendency to ‘imagine’ things into existence rather than confronting the reality, but once Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us become quiet, but never oppressed. They think they are actively helping those in need, 'those poor saps they are listening to', but it is simply a way to gain their attention so that they can expose the full range of their considerable smarts. Strangely, they think they are forthright but, in truth, they are very laid back and unfazed by what may be happening around them.

They have a superabundance of space to receive energy. I do not mean they are dark matter – they most certainly are not; quite the opposite, in fact. I mean that they are as powerful in drawing energy as the Sun is in expressing it. They are the complete antithesis of their polar opposites, (+ + + +), who are unable to receive at all, but give everything they have got – crash, bang, Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us wallop and there you have it; unbridled thrust. For the (- - -)types, their energy is geared only “to receive” and it is usually unconstrained. It has no effect on them whether the giver requires their attention but their intention is the opposite – they just want to hear it like it is. In truth, they don’t really mind what the other person feels or is saying. They are simply drawing the energy they need themselves from the other person.

They don’t initiate reaching out to others. It is a chore to them that they have to bother going through the process of ‘getting to know you’. However, others reaching out to them will be decidedly appreciated. Despite the apparent reticence they may seem to show in their meeting with people for the first time, believe it or not, they are extremely Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us forthright, personality-driven and non-self aware. In their quiet moments, they never question themselves, and are totally unconcerned that they may have offended someone in some way unnecessarily. There is an exception to this. They do not believe in cruelty and if a person has been bitterly hurt or offended no one can go to the extremes (- - -) people will to amend the situation. If you can take it, however, and they know you can, you'll be burned at the stake without care. Apologies are out of the question - more chance of hell freezing over. What is there to apologise for when they aren't aware they have even caused an upset?

They love company they already know, as it energises them, but meeting new company is difficult for them to have to endure, as they Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us do not thrive on forming new relationships; it makes them feel slightly awkward. On these occasions, they usually go into 'observer' mode whilst smiling at you.

However, once the first meeting or two with 'new company' has been accomplished they are immediately treated as old company and (- - - -) are again in their element. In turn, they are most energised by old familiar company over whom they will hold court.

They can happily engage in any event as the life and soul of the party but it is all surface. As long as the party is being generated they will gladly take their place. The promising balance initially found in their own type's company dissipates in time leaving them with a feeling of "what next"? Once the party is Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us going, they have a strong desire for more and more – i.e. no full capacity.

(- - - -) people have an amazing ability for absorbing the energy of all other types. In contrast, their opposites, the (+ + + +) cannot get on with other (+ + + +) because 'like' poles repel and they have no inlet valve between them so they push each other apart. (- - - -) people, on the other hand, cannot get on with other (- - - -) people to any great degree because they have no transmitters to attract one another so they harmlessly rub off one another without any magnetism. Think of two magnets without any positive energy just like two pieces of non-magnetised metal. In that sense they can get on together. Simply speaking, there is no 'magnetic' attraction.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

Imagine what we've got here - four receivers and no transmitters. All the other types propel magnetic energy outwards to a greater or lesser extent but not this type. They only and wholly have the capacity to receive. They can take all you've got in double and then more and more and more. That is what they do. Their opposite, the (+ + + +) types, have no inlet valves, so they beam themselves out of existence with the incredible lightness of being but, (- - - -) means 'deep, very deep' and very understanding. They are insatiable for energy. With it comes wisdom. Additionally, they are invariably, highly moralistic and correct in their demeanour.

If (+ + + +) people were to be described as 'electricity' then (- - - -) people would be Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us described as 'reflectors of light'; two extreme expressions of the same energy, or the sun and the moon, respectively.

(- - -) may well exude a bright and breezy personality but I can assure you whether they do or not they will be extremely serious beneath it all. These guys are formidable. They are constantly assessing, weighing and judging everything around them. They don't often become leaders in the modern world although they are always striving to be top dog. When they do, they are introspective, retiring and appear to others as controlling, deep, aloof and suspicious. Interestingly, most of the presidents in the first seventy-five years of the modern history of the USA were (- - -) but there have been none in the 20th century. In Britain, only two (- - -) i.e.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us
Alec Douglas-Home and Gordon Brown have ever been prime minister of the UK and neither of them were elected by the people, having stepped into their positions due to the pressured resignation of a former incumbent.

They have great backbone and can often be found supporting the underdogs, and the most underprivileged, but not in a loud brash way. That's not their style at all. They 'receive' not 'transmit' so they use their 'receivership' to shift the weight of interest to what needs to be done.

They are big hitters. They can dance with the best of them but the natural state is to be serene and calm. So, whenever they are on parade, they feign to present themselves as the same as everyone else. But they are not.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

They never will be. They are supremely different in that they offer others the support they need because they themselves need their emissions of light and energy. The polarity type is set for them solely to attract. This can make them appear serious, sometimes austere and remonstrative.

They may often compensate for their lack of (+) with a localised vibrant personality. In such cases, they can, and do, contribute well in groups. Indeed, they can often be found taking the lead. They are well capable of it. But the underlying fact is they are incredibly magnetically introspective and intelligent in their consideration of the forces around them because of their need to attract energy. So, they will often suppress their own innate desire to take charge and therefore they will

(+ - - -) types in that it is 'towards the self'. That is to say they center themselves on the basis of incoming energy. Although they are by nature self-centred, they are not self-centred in a selfish way; quite the opposite, in fact. Both of (+ - - -) and are extremely 'unselfish'. They are set to use what means are at their disposal to draw the electromagnetic fields available from others. When it does not happen, stand back, here comes some stomping of feet, the glad-rags are donned and the big 'let's have a party' attitude takes over. They don't like sitting-in at all. No light. Yes, we all need our quiet moments but rarely do (- - - -) people welcome them.

They are also extremely kind and thoughtful. They have a natural instinct for what is Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us 'required' given most situations. It's like an antenna for what is purposeful and what is not. This guide propels them to ensure they continue to attract the light which is their purpose. They also bring this gift to ensuring the balanced interaction between others is maintained. What a friend to have! They won't let you down. Heaven forbid what will happen if you let them down though.

Spirited, (- - -) people are hard-working and very well adjusted. They have a keen sense of high moral values. Everything is advanced to best reflect the laws of attraction. They are strong and appear non-violent but, exceptionally, those that do go to the dark side are capable of using the same magnetic force to deviant and devastating purpose. Thankfully, this is very rare. In a general Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us sense they are captivating and real party-lovers; great observers and serious show-offs. Bring on the lights and out they come. Yet, for all that, they are immensely withdrawn. The attractors make their persona different when in public than in private.

In personal relationships

In their relationships they are the best positioned of all the 4 types for dealing with (+ + + +). In conformity with the principles of magnetism, they are their direct polar opposites and, whilst they may consume each other electromagnetically, this does not make them the ideal partnership. Better for (- - - -) that there should be a little humility found in those with lots of transmitters but, unfortunately, they don't have that trait.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us
Scoring a '6' on the Scales of Electromagnetic Relationships (SER – figure 2), the best and most engaging partnership for (- - - -) is (+ + + -). This type are great performers on the world's stage and this provides a plentiful supply of dynamic and amusing action that the (- - - -) craves. Here we have a situation where the (+ + + -) can pour out the energy, which the (- - - -) can easily absorb but, at the same time, the remaining one (-) shares the power with the (- - - -) as they both have a receiver remaining. In other words they are both going the same way.

The (- - - -) with a (+ - + -) (remember – the placement of the (+) and (-) does not matter) has prospects but, depending on the circumstances, I think the latter will be less Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us interested in the former than the other way round. Again, here we see that the sparks can be generated by the (+ - + -) and be readily received by the (- - - -) but, after that, the balance is one of (- -) against (- -) and this makes for a less than dynamic situation. In fact it makes the relationship 'pleasant' but there is a need for a shock to stimulate it.

When there is a combination of (- - - -) and (+ - - -) there is a natural affinity because of the one transmitter that sparks it. However, this is not enough to light the fire and the relationship will never take off beyond friendliness. Certainly, this coupling is not destined to stay together in the one place for long. (- - - -) needs more transmitters and although (+ - - -) is attracted to (- - - -) because they are not challenged by them,

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us
they, too, recognise they need someone with transmitters also.

As for (- - - -) with (- - - -) these two can rub together like two negative poles on a magnetic behaves but they are a rarity that leaves the question whether such a relationship is possible unless they live on a mountain where there's no one else. Where is the spark to come from? They will definitely not be 'magnetically' attracted to one another. Money, circumstances or privileges may prevail if there is a liaison but because the energy flow is to attract and not emit there will be nothing pulsating here and they will be like two blind sheep in a field.
Magnetism aside, circumstances can always exist that make any relationship possible. It's a case of war and peace – war in the case of

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us (+ + + +) with (+ + + +) and peace in the case of (- - - -) and (- - - -) .

THREE RECEIVERS ONE TRANSMITTER

(- - - +) (- + - -), (- - + -), (+ - - -)

Fieri! That is the best word to describe those whose magnetic polarity is made up of three receivers and one transmitter. It may seem strange to say that. It might appear to be more appropriate for their direct opposites, (+ + + -), but unlike them, it is a quiet, subdued, smouldering fieriness. It can erupt almost without warning. They have a great Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us capacity for absorbing energy so, unsurprisingly, they can become very irascible when they want things to go their own way. They demand attention and thrive on being adored. They need the light and will do anything to attract it, not for itself, but so it can highlight them. This is totally unlike their direct opposites, the heavily dynamic (+ + -) who personally shun away from the limelight, letting their position or role take the beam and not them. To this end (- - - +) people can be the most personable and charming of all the five magnetic types. Once they capture your attention you will be completely captivated. They can be absolutely enthralling.

The energy source here is toward the receptive. Their opposites, (+ + + -), are all Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us very forward and loud with their EMF, even 'obvious', but this group are very subtle to a point and then WHAM! The key magnetic trait that derives from the electromagnetic force field here is to draw the energy so it can be put to some useful purpose to them. And (- - - +) types can produce a lethal cocktail of charm and persuasion to achieve their objective in whatever way it suits them. In addition, they can be extremely methodical in getting what they want. No stone is left unturned.

They are not the overt life and soul of a party but they are great party participants. No party should ever be without them as they can be gracious and smooth in their engagement with others. Never are they too loud. They are too centrist to not always Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us remain aware of how they are being perceived so that they can continue to maximise on the attention or appreciation they naturally demand. Whenever they find such respect missing, they will blatantly persist to recover it, and could turn sour if they think it is not going to be forthcoming. This may sound negative but it is quite the opposite. It's just what they do – attract energy!

They are very, very tough and have no problems dealing with obstinacy or bolshie opposition, usually meeting it head-on knocking its two front teeth out, if it can be done. Yet, they easily melt when they have been rejected, beaten or confronted by an unpardoned or unpardonable error discovered in their behaviour, which they Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us cannot defend. They tend to shrink away to lick their wounds like a scolded cat. This gives them an air of vulnerability which is another of their attractors although they are well able to take care of themselves.

The energy source here is very powerful because it provides people of this dynamic with the strength to drive forward and the ability to absorb the pressures that come when doing so. In quiet reflective moments, they will chastise themselves or feel racked by doubt but to the outside world this will be heavily masked and few ever get to see it. However, it is always evident in their manner to everyone who knows them well. They are able to home in on the souls of others around them and can be deadly accurate in Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us using this against their prey whenever the need arises.

The expression of generosity they show is rooted in the payback clause of their blueprint. Remember they are mainly receivers. They have huge capacity for absorbing the energy of the world around them. Unlike those with four receivers who are, ironically, really benign and behave, Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us comparatively, like toothless tigers, this group has teeth and can use them.

Not only super-sweet when they want to be, they are drawn to loyalty. They are also great separatists and individualists, like their opposites. In one to one relationships, their partner is usually retained as long as the partner remains completely loyal and devoted to them, for they will always remain completely loyal to their partner. Why look elsewhere when you have already got the commitment needed to keep the ego going! Even if you have been indiscreet and caught out, (- - - +) people may still suffer you as part of their ploy to regain your affection and loyalty. But, watch out, in such cases you will always be on notice. However, they are extremely kind and supportive to those who Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us measure up. They will always strive for peaceful co-existence but, when push comes to shove, they will not hesitate a second to take your head off, or worse, if you have not regained your position in their eyes. Turning their back on you will be the least of your worries.

They sit comfortably with, rather than be energised by other people with the same dynamic profile. Usually, where a physical relationship exists, they will need to have a good deal of their own independence. Otherwise there will be mighty clashes. Although they easily gravitate towards their own electromagnetic type, recognising the similar force in the other, two with the same profile (i.e. (- - - +) with (- + - -) (the poles placement does not matter) will not make an ideal relationship unless there is plenty of material comfort to enable the individuals to retreat to their own environs because they are both pulling from the same source.

They are warm, friendly, engaging individuals who like to take charge of situations but underlining this stance is their absolute requirement to have someone else in the wings to whom they can address themselves as though they, their close associates, are in charge. They try to be open and honest in their dealings with others but the energy source can make them as cute as needs be to a) ensure that they continue to be respected and b) stay in charge. They smart easily and like to have their time-outs to sort themselves out, returning to the fray as though butter would Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us not melt in their mouths. When they greet you, they are always open, fulsome, bright-eyed and bushy-tailed. Smiling and beguiling, they are interested in you and make you feel like you could be the most important person in the world. They are wonderful hosts and hostesses, letting you get on with it. Once they have greeted you with all these smarts at the door, you are basically left to your own devices, not quite forgotten about, just left to your own devices in direct contrast with the greeting you had on the door. ‘Occasional nod and: “alright?” – that’s it! What more do you want? After all, you are really there as a boost to their need, not the other way around. All the time you will be monitored from afar without knowing it.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

As well as everything else, and notwithstanding some of the major personalities who have risen to the top of the pile here, they are self-doubting when they are in a leadership position, needing plenty of comfort and support and ego massaging to hold the line. If it is not there it can lead to them making an exit to quietly get on with things to suit themselves. That said, all of them are extremely reliable and rarely exude an ambitious streak although they always know where they want to be.

Some of the most principled and determined characters in recent history have had this configuration. And they all attract 'ready-to-die-for-them' devotees. They all carry the same magnetic polarity that provides for a style of behaviour, which enables them to Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us deal with life's little turns in a very particular fashion – true grit!

(- - - +) people, by their behaviour, attract, if not demand, total devotion. This striving to be looked up to or liked can be seen in many high-profile entertainers, leaders and very successful people. They can galvanise or move large numbers of people in response to themselves. Whether they do it by writing, politics, sport, acting, adventure or whatever, they have the innate capacity to magnetically draw massive support to their thought processes. Unlike the (- + + +) group who attract attention to a cause rather than themselves, (- - - +) types conversely draw support only towards themselves like metal filings to a magnet. If things do not accede to their wishes, watch out!

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us
Unlike (- - - -) group whose war cry could be “And what do I get out of this?” those who are (- - - +) are less selfish in that way, because they are always seeking approval from their constituency. They feel the need to be loved more than any other type.
Outside their constituency they can be merciless.

They are often generous to a fault to those they find favour with. I guess that could be Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us said to be true for all of us but, again, the underlying factor here is that the generosity shown is a vehicle created to enable the receivers to be fed with energy. (- - - +) need an awful lot of input. That one (+) they have ensures they are expulsing sufficient waves of electromagnetic energy to keep the fires burning with reciprocation in triplicate.

They can be daring, seemingly fearless, bellicose almost, who love to be in the forefront of whatever they are doing. No shrinking violets these but they do also like to be part of the machine and even the machine itself. Obviously, there are a lot of front line personalities in this group just as there are in others, but (- - - +) like to keep their private lives private whilst keeping up appearances in the daily grind.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

They behave in such ways as to attract others to want to help them or inspire others to be confident in them. In public, the impression they give is that they are stable. They are not given to be over-elaborate in their behaviour during times of normal circumstances. This is all seen by other non (- - - +) people as a modest and temperate attitude that enables (- - - +) to imperceptibly ingratiate themselves into favourable positions. Not a bad talent to have!

Beneath the laissez-faire, first-impression, these guys are tough and resilient. They can, and do, stand their ground. Even when they are wrong they can somehow muster the strength to continue the combat. Another thing about them is that more than any of the Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us others, when they give their commitment, they give their whole commitment unreservedly. It's quite a thing in this, sometimes, shallow world of ours. However, you are always on red alert to deliver what they need when they need it. In other words, their commitment to you demands your wholehearted commitment to them. Well, it's only fair anyway. Whereas, their kindred spirits, the (- - - -) group, who share the same side of the magnetic pole equation, and who are also loyal beyond the pale, would condemn you if you failed them, these types resign themselves to their great disappointment in you. It can be quite a withering feeling.

The whole raison d'être of the magnificent (- - - +) is about drawing energy or other Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us people's polarity towards themselves. That does not mean they are selfish. Not at all! In fact, they can undoubtedly be as generous as anyone else. No, it means they are centred on themselves or self-motivated. They are the absolute antithesis to their polar opposites, (+ + - +) who generate energy patterns away from themselves but love the limelight. (- - - +) people's energy patterns draw other forces towards themselves. Their one (+) beams away as and when they wish to attract the energy they need. This makes them appear thoughtful, introspective and, seemingly, ponderous. They may be brilliant or stupid, happy or sad, rich or poor but they all strive to fit-in.

Due to the magnetic flow they are not impulsive. They are slow and deliberate in their processes; judicious, cautious, predominantly passive, and refined. The personality their EMF engenders is not outward and overwhelming but rather inward, comfortable and pleasant. When they smile, they beam. When they are sullen, they have a look about them that declares “I know what I want” and “I know where I am”. When denied their rights, they can turn on you quicker than a hissing rattler.

They are very correct and proper. They can be recognised as the backbone of any organisation. They are diligent and reliable. In most of their dealings they would like to be thought of as above reproach. And, in the main, they will always appear cool and aloof. They are not given to trail-blazing but can lead well – like a mother-hen - when the Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us opportunity arises. It isn't something they particularly seek but they are extremely capable of it when it comes their way. Because of their low-key image, they can be overlooked when it comes to honours but when the accolades are gone, and they are gone, too, they expose a 'missing link' about themselves as the noticeable absence of the enormous power they brought to the situation. They are truly towering in strength. They are comfortable in their own skin, which is caused by the inward stream of electromagnetic energy from all around them. They don't have to do much to collect what they need.

Now, in case I have given the impression that (- - + -) cannot be leading lights, try these! Maggie Thatcher, Elton John,

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us
Princess Diana, Richard Burton, Catherine Zeta-Jones and David Beckham are of this type to name but a very few. Pretty powerful eh! But look again and think carefully how private they actually are in their normal lives and how they each have a loyal strong partner for moral support. The ever inward direction of the force field makes them 'quiet' and 'reflective' whilst their role-play makes them appear dynamic for a time. If they tire, as they easily do, they become ebullient and grumpy.

They need their space. They are also well-grounded, strong-willed and responsible. They are consistent, hard-working and geared for success. Ever so serene, I am reminded of the adage: "Still waters run deep".

In personal relationships

Do they go well together? I mean do they link well with others who are also (- - - +)? Frankly, not as well as they should! They tend to get on each other's nerves and, eventually, if together, they live separate lives to enable the space to evolve to enable being together. They will need to have material support for this to happen really successfully. If not, their chances of experiencing a long-term happy relationship are challenging as feuds will be often. Each of them will be expecting the other to do what is necessary rather than they, themselves, doing it. Nevertheless, there is a natural attraction between them because they are made of the same material but, whenever it does happen, two separate lives Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us must exist like two railway tracks sharing the link boards. (- - - +) really need someone with at least two and preferably three transmitters (+) for ignition. Someone with four (+ + + +) will totally overpower them although they are naturally attracted to them but (- - - +) people can absorb the blaze of light, suppressing their own individuality in the process. This can lead to a dictatorship about the house.

On the other hand, (- - - -) people will never match with them for long spells because of the lack of spontaneous response from the cool and aloof (- - - +) on the Scales of Electromagnetism (SER figure 2) and although they often click, I believe it is more often because of security than magnetism.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

They can have the ultimate relationship with their polar opposite (- + + +). It offers a perfect balance. Watch out though because there is an in-built, self-destruct mechanism in this coupling. This means they are in constant danger of transforming this natural relationship success into failure. Whilst (- - - +) and (+ + + -) make for a pivotal 7 on the electromagnetic scales of relationships, they can tire their opposites rather than their opposites tiring them. This is the only time when 7's on the scale breakdown. 7 is the only shared point on the scale being the same from the Active (+) or Passive (-) side.

(- + - +) types are the more promising in the relationship stakes. They have the right balance for an even keel. The extra (+) in the polarity gives the relationship what it doesn't have with others but not so much as to stimulate it to over-dynamism – something the (- - - +) don't like for too long as they like their peace and quiet moments.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

THREE TRANSMITTERS, ONE RECEIVER

(+ + + -) (- + + +), (+ - + +), (+ + - +)

You might think I am going to suggest that you put your dark glasses on for crash, bang, wallop, here come the bobby dazzlers; especially, after what I said about the (- - -) types! Not a chance. Stand down. Remember, surface personality is not a direct reflection of the code but a result of it.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

The code predetermines the core innate self. For example, (- - - -) might give you the impression of what you think a (+ + - +) person must be like and vice versa. It's only an impression – the real them will be revealed to you by familiarity. So whilst (+ + - +) may be the life and soul of any party, they are also more often the quiet ones in the corner when the party is over.

These people are unquestionably forthright in whatever they are doing, but they are also incredibly non-aggressive. They make great organisers and middle managers. They will certainly take the lead if it is there for the taking but, equally, they will not be the first to come forward to claim the right. They are extremely well balanced and friendly. They have all of the audacity and none of the fierceness of (+ + + +) types and – to be expected in the world of magnetism - they are the complete antithesis of their direct opposite, (+ - - -), who are centred on themselves rather than the object of their interest.

(+ + - +) types have a very light, positive outlook and attitude. At the same time they are not exhibitionists nor do they ever boast or swagger, but they appear to be ‘stage huggers’ because they are extroverted. In the modern idiom they are “cool”. They are fiercely able and individualistic people. Nothing is too daunting for them. Often, they will take on more than they can chew because of that. But as they are not self-delusional they can deal with it, or the outcome of it, should it prove necessary to do so.

They are clinical and clear about their intentions and will not be shy about letting them be known either. They have a tendency to say it like it is, that is whenever they bother to say anything at all because, although they are engaging, they are not seekers of attention to themselves. The attention they look to draw is towards the issue itself that irritates or interests them. In the main they behave as though they may be wary or reticent to give utterances. However, when pressed to do so, or coerced by circumstances into doing so, nothing will prevent them from stating the case. I think they are the most truthful of all types, certainly to themselves, and therefore they Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us can appear to be free with their remarks. They are completely reliable and duty-bound, whether it may be to others or themselves, which can often be the case. They are great at accepting their fate and can show a little incoherence and excess when they lose their self-control.

(+ + - +) are extremely able and good conversationalists in their private lives but often to the outside world they invariably Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us project an image of separateness or detachment. They are unperturbed by the opinions of others about something they do or say. After all, when it's the truth, why should the feelings of others bother you? This gives them immeasurable strength to carry out the plan, their plan...maybe.

With (+ + - +) people there can be extremes of public persona but always a common outlook in private. They can be witty and light-hearted but away from the public view, they are extremely private, temperate individuals. They are very down-to-earth, always friendly and trying to live in the real world as real people. There will be no airs and graces especially behind closed doors from this polarity type.

(+ + - +) are intensely self-assured and private. They have no need to seek public adoration. That may come as a result of the position they are in or the talent they show but, after the show is over, so are they – over you!

One over-riding factor in their electromagnetic make-up is that they are born survivors. And, after that, if the going is too tough even for them, they have the necessary reserves to switch out the lights. They are able, keen, quick and determined and better than anyone else at withstanding the pressures of a change in fortune. Witness to this fact are Christopher Reeves who so stoically dealt with being paralysed from the neck down and the cases of Jonathan Aitken and Jeffrey Archer, both of Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us whom are (+ + - +) and faced the trauma of prison with a certain air of dignity having once held such lofty high positions. Many a person might have been expected to completely buckle under such dramatic changes of fortune but they not only succeeded in not doing so, they actually accepted it for what it was and, thereby, turned the situation to any advantage they could make of it. When the going gets really tough and there is absolutely no way out they just shrug their shoulders, smile and face the situation with quiet aplomb.

This then is the essential trait in this type – big persona tempered by the word ‘private’ writ large across their foreheads; this far and no further. That is why they have a natural ability to be able to defend the indefensible Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us and if, finally, proven wrong, they turn on their heels, - 'the matter is to be ignored from now on' - and that is the end of that.

With openness, warmth and friendliness, it's an in-your-face type attitude. Quietly suffering the slings and arrows around them, but always striving for placation. They have a sense of instinctively "knowing" what is right. There is not much skulduggery here. What you see is what you get. They can be a bit over the top about their innate abilities but why not? Haven't we all at some time? They are pretty rounded characters, and knowledgeable too. It may not necessarily be in-depth but they will have a good idea about most things. Because of the honesty factor, when they are driven to the other side they can be very honestly hurtful. No sooner

done than they will make every effort to claw their way back to the status quo.

They are very expulsive, meaning they are very sociable animals. A rare or sick one might tell you they hate a party, or going out but frankly they love to mix and give vent to their smarts and exchange with all the world. They have a nervy type of energy. Their one (-) {Receiver} ensures they are able to listen to what you have to say too but they usually use that just to stimulate their own cogitations on the subject matter under discussion. No party should be without them. They make it balance.

So, it's lights, camera, action! (+ + - +) love the limelight – while it lasts. They have a fantastic propensity for shining when the light Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us falls on them. It is in their entire make-up to project themselves. They are no shrinking violets. However, by a quirk of nature, because they like to impress, they are nervous about getting things right and until they do they can give the impression of being those 'shrinking violets'. Once they are sure of what they are doing, there is nothing holding them back from the limelight. Having said that, you would think they would fall apart once the circus has moved on to somewhere else but here is where the real power of (+ + - +) rests for they are completely unfazed at its passing as though it were a burden. The reason why they can do this with such ease is because it is their natural state to 'beam'. So, whether there is a large audience or not indeed, sometimes, even if there is no audience at all, they Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us continue to beam in their 'beingness'. So, being robbed of the spotlight is of no importance to them although obviously it is only natural that they would like it to continue for as long as possible.

(+ + - +) people are great party animals. This does not mean to imply they are frivolous. Some of them are incredibly serious people whilst most of them show their seriousness in their application to any task that befalls

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us them. Whether they are on the world stage, or anything less, they approach everything with a light-hearted, outward expression and a highly composed, inward stability of true grit.

They tackle problems head-on. It's all the same to them whether it be problems created for them or problems of their own making; they are resistant to slings and arrows. They bear all misfortune almost with a shrug. As I mentioned, the one inlet valve they have – the  $\ominus$  in their polarity code – acts like a sensor to stimulate them to respond to the world around them. It accumulates information which they can absorb and use to supply the huge energy source in their three transmitters. The predominance of the transmitters ensures they never cease Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us beaming. Unlike (+ + + +) who have no receivers and therefore do not take other energy in, (+ + - +) delight in having their one receiver (+) because it feeds their desire to express themselves with as much panache as they can muster. That one receiver makes them the most engaging of the five types in their ability to address any of the other four types.

They instinctively know exactly what they are doing, where they are going, what they are out to achieve and how they will do it. In most cases, they won't or can't be told anything. Also, they are the best of all types in rebuffing criticism. It's simply another feeder to their transmitters.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us Still, like everyone, they blush, they get things wrong, they make mistakes, they fail to achieve their objectives. What? Did you think I was painting a picture of perfection? Of course not! They are subject to the same human foibles of everyone else but the way they have of dealing with them is different based on the way their force-field is made up. They unfailingly continue to transmit their energy whatever the circumstance they find themselves in.

Their EMF profile means they are the most able at turning adversity into advantage. Three outputs and one input enables them to be able to resign themselves to their fate.

They are naturally gregarious and, in the process, make great company. Not afraid to Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us shoot on all cylinders, they will go where angels fear to tread. Yet, they are not troublemakers in their dealings with others. In fact, they can take the sting out of almost any situation they are faced with but they are quick to engage in any confrontation that comes their way. By that I don't mean they are ready for physical violence. Some may, some may not, as with anybody, but I mean in coming to terms with their situation. They can be brusque when they want to be and this can also lead to placing them in awkward situations. Whether they be quiet, ebullient or gregarious people their honest, good humour, and verbal abilities based on worldly-wise cognitive sensors, always retrieve the situation in the end. The normal charm of (+ + - +) can make the most violent person calm down. Being brusque is far from Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us being their natural state and it rarely erupts. Sarcasm is always within their reach. Their lightness of attitude makes them natural trouble-shooters.

(+ + - +), though extrovert, does not mean they all have an outgoing personality. Personality is a mask. Dependent on the circumstances, (+ + - +), as with all others, are conditioned by their surroundings and experience. Some, therefore, may behave with more than a good measure of decorum. However, what will definitely be obvious to others is their natural inclination and bearing to be light and giving. And no matter how dour a character some of them from time to time might appear to be, they will shine brightly in company.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

What their EMF defines for them is they are not centred on themselves but rather on the thing they are involved in. This is the reason why they can so easily walk away to a new dawn from a position of great achievement with hardly a look back. The behaviour pattern infused through their EMF is in the line 'That was then, this is now', for most of them act bright and breezy, as if they haven't got a care in the world. This hides a truth: they are as considerate and serious as anyone else in their quiet moments.

This cavalier behaviour to life could also be described as "Que Sera, Sera" or "what will be, will be" and is the hallmark of (+ + - +) people. It stimulates reactions in the other four types because of their force field projecting outwards including those of the Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us same EMF type, which is interesting in that between them they would have 6/8ths parts (+) transmitters but the remaining 2(-) receivers are enough to ensure there is just enough inlet valves to control the steam being produced.

Everyone naturally warms to this type even the (+ + + +) because of their openness and playfulness. However, (+ + + +) soon tire of their puppy ways, and are the worst match for both of them. (+ + - +) love approval and so they hang on for dear life to the (+ + + +) but it only exacerbates the occasional scorn (+ + + +) can show to (+ + - +). The 1 receiver isn't enough to save their relationship or the (+ + - +) would happily do so because they are inherently disposed to be loyal and faithful even when they have Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us transgressed. But, before you think I am talking about fidelity, I better explain what I mean by loyalty and faithfulness. (+ + - +) are as open to affairs of the heart as anyone can be – probably more than most, in fact - but even when they do transgress they will carry on as though nothing has happened and remain loyal and faithful to the first party if they are allowed to be.

They aren't always forthright when it comes to defending others. This is for the same reason as everything else: they don't want to endanger their approval rating.

(+ + - +) love attention and a soapbox so for that reason they make great salesmen. They are showmen and whether they are outside the tent ushering in the clientele, or inside the tent entertaining them directly, it makes no difference. They are there for the performance. So anything that allows them to give outward expression to their innate magnetic field is fine by them.

They can also be foolhardy in not considering the choices they may be facing at any given time. Serious thought is for serious people and they are too lively to succumb to the restrictions seriousness places upon them for very long. You will never find yourself using the phrase “get a life” to these people. They have every bit of it in spades. For those who, by way of personality, and position of authority, seem to be serious or are required to present a serious face to the world, they are merely keeping up appearances. Given half a chance the mask will fall and the playfulness will come to the fore.

There are many shiny bright lights they are easily attracted to and like moths to the flame they gravitate towards anything that can make them flap their wings. Invariably, (+ + - +) don't naturally mean to harm anyone by doing so. They just love the world stage. Flash, bang, wallop!

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

In personal relationships

With regards to forging relationships and alliances they have the strongest electromagnetic placing. Everyone seems to enjoy their company. I believe this is because of their supreme ability to commit wholeheartedly and, where conflict arises, maintain a brave face outside the situation. They have the position of balance in all one-to-one relationships with people who are (- - - +). This is the ultimate pairing they can have, as their electromagnetic poles are entirely complimentary. They also hold the next two highest points on the SER table for they can have excellent relationships with those who are (+ + - -) and those who are like themselves (+ + + -). It may prove a bit too dynamic at times but the loyalty factor is so great here I honestly think they can withstand anything. Even at the worst of times when they have really reached the end of their tether, that little word 'loyalty' will come from deep within the recesses of their existence and point the way until things come good again. The records indicate that relationships between (+ + - +) and (+ + - -) are written in stone. Of all the couplings this is the most solid. On the other hand, those who are (+ + - +) relating to (+ + + +) will have their work cut out for them because of the excessive number of dynamics in the two. There's an auto-attraction because the dynamics are so strong i.e. 7/8ths (+) but it's an illusion. In the end, the loyalty factor mentioned before will be beaten to death by the punishing energy of (+ + - +) who will drive it to the edge. And even then, the (+ + - +) will doggedly hang on. It's that old loyalty factor combined with their mantra "that's just the way it is".

In all their relationships (+ + - +) are the best electromagnetic people on the scale for making friendships work even when they might fail such as with (+ + + +) people. They'll still make every effort to allow it to work.

(+ + - +) are aptly placed to get along with most other types because of their openness but whenever, on the magnetic scale, they find, or are confronted with, the emergence of unbalancing properties, such as those with (+ + + +). Then all kinds of horrors and behavioural destructiveness can break out. This is because of the inert intransigence of Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us the extreme (+ + + +) people. Initially, things may appear good because of the dynamics but those extremes will appear in no time at all.

As for them magnetically relating with those on the opposite ends of the pole, the (- - -) people, this has a degree of possibilities not existent in the other types. Although this is a relationship with an abundance of receivers I think the reason why it works well is that each supplies the other with opposite polarity that they need. The (+) transmitters kick-start the (-) receivers on the opposite poles whilst, simultaneously, the two remaining (-) terminals bring a quietness to the relationship.

TWO TRANSMITTERS, TWO RECEIVERS

(+ + - -), (+ - + -), (+ - - +), (- + - +), (- - + +),

A magnetic polarity of this type in any formation brings to mind “balance”. Alas, ‘tis a lost cause as the hand sits on twelve for just the briefest of moments. It is mostly either approaching or receding from the point Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us of the strike. These magnetic types can be nervy and cool at the same time. There is always a striving towards keeping the hand on 12. It makes them surreptitiously nervous. It makes them self-doubting. And it makes them silently scream inwardly as they allow themselves to be taken advantage of... well, to a point!

We are talking about people who are sympathetic energy out-pourers. They thrive on expression and feed off holding court but they become quiet and introspective when they have exhausted their batteries. At such times they need to be left alone to quietly reflect. It is essential that they be allowed this space. Despite the apparent strength they seem to show in their meeting with people, believe it or not, they are extremely Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us reticent and self-effacing. Their usual bonhomie can be misleading and you can be forgiven for mistaking it as their normal manner when they are actually in need of a temporary retreat from the world. It is often so well hidden you may not notice it until it erupts in your face unexpectedly. They enjoy company but they equally enjoy being alone from time to time. In fact, if they don't have these periods of solitude you can watch out because they will lash out unexpectedly and you'll be left wondering what on earth caused it.

Their motto could well be "don't push me!" But otherwise they'll do anything for you and without any selfish motive whatsoever. Seeing you happy is all they want. On the other hand if they ask a favour of you, they Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us won't be put out if you can't help them. In fact, they won't even remember it the next time you ask them for something but remember what I said "don't push me" is lurking there somewhere.

They want things to be right. They want the government to always do the right thing, their friend to always do the right thing, their employer to always do the right thing, the bus company to always do the right thing. They want everyone to do the right thing and when they don't, as is so often the case, it leads to disappointment.

They can be frustrated because they think they can do things better. Not in a superior way do I mean this but simply in an everyday fashion. They exude commonsense. It's the Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us balance thing again. They don't seek admiration for it and, in fact, they would rather not be engaged in dealing with it but if they have to be, they really can do things better given the chance. If they cannot, they know how it can be done better and who to get to do it. The reason is because they are not looking to gain anything personally from it; hence their frustration with the world about them not measuring up. This is because they are intensely private people and the realisation they will have to involve themselves is anathema to their "beingness". Even the ones who come to public notice can often shy away from publicity-seeking over and above the main issue at hand.

Another interesting facet about this type is their potential leaning to treachery. They are Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us the most dangerous of the five types as many of the most crazed leaders of the 20th century can attest to. Their thought-processes, and occasional angst, is similar to Golom, from The Lord of the Rings. Their “ring” – their “precious” - is balance or perfection. They strive for the impossible – to make the hands on the clock sit forever at 12. And when it does, they will retire gracefully and immediately.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

The same is true of (+ + - -) that they are all given to balance and fairness....from where they sit! Where they do not find it, and especially in cases of what they perceive as outrageous injustice, they really can go over the edge.

They could make excellent spies or politicians because, although “the truth” is at the heart of their whole existence, ironically, they are not averse to lying whenever it is deemed necessary. This can even be self-indulgent to an extent to convince themselves it is necessary for the good of the truth and the achievement of the hands on the clock-face being where they should be – i.e. 12! However, they do not want to be, they do not long to be, they do not intend to stay and, as soon as it is practically Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us possible, they will withdraw from being “the Leader”. Often, they find it impossible to withdraw from it for fear of what replaces them. Certainly, they can be better placed and at their best as the power behind the throne rather than on it - a great coach for example. They have the propensity to make good law-makers and philosophers. The desire for balance is the perfect device to bring fairness to bear. In fact, nothing but nothing can drive these souls over the edge more than injustice and unfairness wherever they may find it. They strive, behind closed doors, to achieve this great objective. When they think it is an impossible task, they retreat, never to be heard of again and happy they are with it. They will gladly live out their days walking on beaches and staring at stars.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

They are comfortable with themselves. This can sometimes convey an air of would-be superiority or indifference to others about them. However, nothing could be further from the truth as to how they feel about themselves. They reveal a very sensitive and self-effacing personality when you get to know them. They are not quite the occasionally caustic, self-assured, ambitious and aloof creature you see before you. They don't even appreciate for anything they might achieve for the greater good. The equality of the direction of their electromagnetic force field always demands balance and fairness.

The best way to describe the energy flow of (+ + - -) is to imagine yourself being in a boat Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us in the Doldrums. Normally the doldrums is a colloquial expression for despondency, depression, listlessness and inactivity but that is not what I mean here for, as I will show you, (+ + - -) types are mostly anything but.

Like the Doldrums, they give the appearance of calm and balance. In fact, that is what they aim for and how they would like to be. Because of the calm, and the desire for calm, when they are disturbed - as we all are from time to time - they erupt into the most outrageous characters of all. Yet, even in this state, they can just as suddenly return to their normal state of calm. This trait gives them an air of authority that none of the other four types exude. They appear so even and balanced that they attract all the other types Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us in equal measure. However, when they blow, they really blow. Some of the world's worst despots and, a few who were not considered despots but, at times, acted like they were, have come from this type, Adolf Hitler and Saddam Hussein to name but two.

Research has shown that where a leader is selected in any group, more often than not, it is one of these souls who is chosen. Where others 'take' power, these usually have it foisted upon them and often through circumstance. Indeed, for a good example of this, it is noteworthy that of the 16 popes elected to the throne of St. Peter, between 1800 and 2015 no less than 11 were this type and, interestingly, none were (- - - -) or (+ + + +).

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

So how best do you explain the electromagnetic force field operating in them? The energy flow is equal in its outward and inward movement. They can be as kind and approachable as they can equally be found to be dismissive and cold. They are like tightrope walkers, always correcting themselves against the invisible movement of air that is human interaction all around them. Like tightrope walkers, they hate to be pushed too far as such an imbalance makes them fall... from grace. This makes them extremely self-effacing. They can access, absorb and resign themselves to their fate with benign dignity once the rage within has passed. The rage is caused by their inability to bring balance to their position.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

They make the most powerful of friends without being intrusive. Whilst they appear to be friendly, they are, at all times, seemingly aloof. For the moment you are there, you feel as if you are being treated as their best friend. Yet, the moment you are gone, you feel you are forgotten. However, you are never forgotten, simply shelved until the next time you are taken out of the box.

They are equally strong and weak. Once they commit to something it becomes the point from which balance is then sought even if that position is a morally indefensible one. There is no going back. They each have their own centre of balance. Some will lean more towards the plus/active/transmitter side of their nature; others to the minus/passive/receiver side. The majority, Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us though, will be finely balanced between both. Those who lean predominantly towards the (+) side will invariably stride towards fame or notoriety whilst those who lean more towards the (-) will be more observant and unobtrusive in their engagement with others. You will find amongst (+ - - +) types some of the worlds most determined despots and vicious killers but you will also find some of the world's greatest and most dignified reactionaries in dealing with their perceived 'injustice'. So they are a real mixed bag of delights.

They can also be Machiavellian in their behaviour. Indeed, Machiavelli is one himself, as was Leonardo DaVinci, lending their type to the accurate sobriquet of 'polymaths' or all-rounders. Devious and cunning in nature is what Machiavelli was remembered for, which is 'grist to the mill' of  $\ominus\oplus\ominus\oplus$  types. In every way, their motivational response is to seek peace, harmony and order - in themselves. The emotional responses of others can easily unbalance them and that leads to their 'withdrawal', which makes them appear weak but, in fact, is their strength as they 'know' instinctively what is occurring and can easily recognise their inability to triumph over it. No one will give you more consideration or good counsel than they will. And no one will sharpen your response to the cause of it better than they can.

The whole motivation of  $(+ + - -)$  is to give and take in fair and equal measure. They make perfect party hosts and guests, never Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us being excessive in any way and giving 'glue' to the rest so that they keep things moving and interesting. Their demeanour allows others to be whatever they are by influencing them without their knowledge and by not directly 'controlling' them. They will always try to fit in with the circumstances rather than force the circumstances to fit in with them.

This is how the magnetic flow translates into the personality of (+ + - -). This is how equality in their magnetism expresses itself in their personality and the attitude that prevails in what they do. After that, all those other factors of personality that go into making us what we are such as speech, looks, language, education, experience, lifestyle, etc., etc., create a mask that hides us from knowing them or them from knowing

US.

In their normal state, they are great 'supporters' of causes, ideas and people, and unobtrusively so. They make great companions and will rarely let you down. However, if you ask for something that they will not, can not or do not want to give, you may find them caustic.

This makes them ideal backbone material to any enterprise. They are always course-correcting their position to ensure balance. They make good listeners although, sometimes, they may not be good at hearing. Their placement on the magnetic scale, being centre, makes them readily 'available' to others. They are reliable in a way none of the others ever can be because of this demand for equilibrium.

Another important factor to remember is the polarity profile applies to everyone whatever their type, irrespective of background, education, age, cleverness, colour, creed or kind. It is a robotic, machine-like, driving force that is the magnetic force field that delivers a process to our thinking before our thoughts emerge.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

It can be compared to the BIOS on a computer. It resides first before the operating system comes into effect. The difference with us human beings is it is aligned to the Earth's magnetic field and predetermines our interaction with others.

In personal relationships

(+ + - -) types mix well and best with all other types for they are the centre of the scales. They are attractive to all the other types mainly because they appear to never give offence or challenge. But that is just their diplomatic way. It is not a good idea to think of them as easy prey. They treat everyone they meet with the same respect, even their enemies. So, in their personal relationships, it takes an awful lot for them to turn their back on you. If they do, you will find that even in this, they still carry a degree of balance about the situation and will always be open to exchanging views about what made it possible in the first place. This facility in their make-up could make them philosophers and psychologists.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

They get on well particularly with their own kind because the energy flow is equal. Sometimes one or the other will enter attack mode and the response will be from the other to draw out their (+ +) element and strike back. Result – mini Armageddon. At other times they will both be using their (- -) sides mainly and they will just drift along harmlessly going nowhere. Otherwise they can be expected to remain seemingly placid Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us and imperturbable. (+ + - -) with (+ + - -) make a perfect symbiotic match with an equal measure of give and take in their relationship. They are a 'receiver' (-) relationship because they do not intentionally cause offence but rather act in a defensive way. This placid relationship, though magnetically successful, needs the extra transmitter (+) or the extra receiver (-) that the others have.

With (+ + + -) they have the greatest success. The dynamics of the (+ + + -) stimulate the (+ + - -) to be vibrant in response. It goes a little overboard when it comes to (+ + + +). These guys just burn and burn and it becomes tiring for the (+ + - -). They need to retreat for a long period after a foray or two with (+ + + +). As Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us for (- - - -), they get on famously and much better with them but only after a fashion as, in time, they need to retreat to restore their two terminal (+) batteries to keep the spark going for it is they who stimulate the return from the (- - - -) types and (- - - -) can absorb any energy they can find. (+ + - -) get on particularly well with (- + - -), with the occasional heated exchange a guarantee. It's never serious as they are both laconic leaning. I should mention here that the success of all one-to-one relationships appears to hinder on there being one more transmitter (+) between the pair, as is the case here, with the exception of the relationships at the lower ends of the polarity scales.

WHO GOES WHERE?

I would not like you to look at the lists of examples and think I am talking about these people on a personal level for I am not. Of course I am not. I have never met them. But at the level I am talking about I know them intimately for I am talking about what informs them in their behaviour. Some may be cool and aloof, others, warm and engaging, but that is their public persona. What is behind their masks – their drivers - is the distribution of poles that, in this case, directs them to be what they are.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

Here's an interesting fact. As I briefly touched on earlier, in the last 150 years there have been 16 popes. The selection of a Pope is highly political and secretive. The manoeuvrings behind the scenes, the many failures to elect a preferred candidate, the need to strive for someone suitable to deal with the destiny of the church and the desires of its officials who run it make it a lethal time for the cardinals when making their choice. The throne of Rome is rarely ever more than 'unto death' and is really all-powerful. Yet, to date, out of the 16 elected to the seat of the St. Peter, 11 have been (+ + - -). If you were a betting man or woman you could rightly expect fantastic odds against this occurring if you wanted to place a bet on it. It is truly astonishing given there are 5 types.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

Of the few who were not this type, one was Barnaba Chiaramonti, who was elected pope Pius VII in 1742. He was (+ + + -). A second, Albino Luciani, who was also (+ + + -), lasted only 33 days as Pope JohnPaul1. The third, is the last and most different of them all, Joseph Ratzinger, who is (- + - -) and, as Pope Benedict XV1, appeared to shoe himself, almost dictatorially, into the position having been the right-hand man to the most successful pope of all time – John Paul II who was also a (+ + - -) pope as is the current pope Francis 1.

With only five types, wouldn't you expect a more even distribution of popes would be elected over such a long period of time? It is true that, given the fact that (+ + - -) are their own opposite, there is a doubling of chances Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us for selection but it is still astonishing the number that are blindly 'selected'.

The fact is that the choice people are given to make, depending on the role that causes the predominance of the selection of one type or another, entreats them instinctively, magnetically, to a balanced type rather than another.

I will show you various other disciplines where other types predominated, due to the discipline they were involved in but let's stick to (+ + - -) just for now. Please remember the placement – the sequence - of the (+) or (-) does not matter. It is simply reflecting how the composition was arrived at. For example, (+ + - +) is the same as (+ + + -) in its magnetism.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

Take a look at the US Federal Reserve for example. This is an organisation where people are 'appointed' rather than publicly 'selected'. As I write this book, there have been 15 heads of the Federal Reserve up to and including the current incumbent, Janet Yellen. Of that number, almost 50% have been (+ + - -). This is a similar position of power where the candidate doesn't overtly canvas to be selected. It is based mainly on the judgment of his peers as to his suitability. On the other hand if you look at politics, where the candidate does have to appeal for selection, you will find that, in that arena, (+ + - -) types are less popular. In the UK, of the 21 British prime ministers there have been to date, only 5 were (+ + - -) types. And in the USA, of the 43 different presidents, only 15 have been (+ + - -), the last being

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us
Barak Obama. In fact, most American presidents in the last 100 years have been (+ + -) (they love the stage) yet in the first 150 years they were mostly (- - -) of which there have been none since 1900. This demonstrates the USA has changed from a deeply conservative one to an all-teeth-and-braces nation.

Many of the world's most successful men, particularly in computing, are predominantly blue (- - -), whilst at the other end of the pole, (+ + + +), who are also big on the world's stage, usually become leaders. And the back-bone to everything is found in the (+ - -) types – steady, reliable, introspective. You will find them everywhere producing order and glue in all around them. Without

this type I am certain the world would explode.

However, to put things into perspective...

Bill Gates	Microsoft	28 Oct 1955 (- - - -)
Steve Jobs	Apple	24 Feb 1955(- - - -)
Rupert Murdoch	News Corp	11 Mar 1931(- - - -)
Mark Zuckerberg	Facebook	14 May 1984(+ - - +)
Larry Page	Google	26 Mar 1973(+ - + -)
Sergey Brin	Google	21 Aug 1973(+ - + -)
Richard Branson	Virgin	18 Jul 1950(- - + +)
Ted Turner	Media	19 Nov 1938(- - + +)
Donald Trump	Trump Org.	14 June 1946(+ + + +)
Craig Venter	Biologist	14 Oct 1946(+ + + +)

The above list is an off-the-cuff selection of some of the most important and well-known people of Internet time. It's astonishing to see there's not a single (- - - +) or (+ + + -)

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us among them. Of the 10 listed, they consist of:-

3 who are (- - - -)

5 who are (+ + - -)

2 who are (+ + + +)

This is probably the most important section in the book for understanding the system. In this area there are listed below the most successful and the most rich individuals in the world. Some made it through luck; others, through their cleverness. Others, still, through a combination of unseen or unknown factors. If the code was to see patterns in every group, then why not in this one? Notwithstanding the fact that there are slightly more chances of a (- - + +) type than the others, surely there ought not to be many more of one type than another? Surely there ought not to be a pattern of the whole group Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us of 5 types relevant to the method I've employed to assess them. If randomness was at work here, which is what is actually the case, there ought to be a fair and, roughly, even distribution of the five types. But there isn't. There never is!

Anyone can win the lottery. Anyone can rise to be the richest man or woman in the world if the circumstances are right. Your EMF, birth sign or personality may help you to get there but not a lot. Right? And yet there are no (- - - +) or (+ + + -). How is it possible? Well maybe I just haven't picked enough of a sample.

So, let's add to what we have in the populists above by including the top ten richest individuals in the world according to Forbes.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us
Now what could be more random than that?
After all, I didn't choose them.

Carlos Slim	Mexico	28 Jan 1940 (2+/2-)
Bill Gates	USA	28 Oct 1955 (4-)
Warren Buffett	USA	30 Aug 1930 (4+)
Bernard Arnault	France	05 Mar 1949 (1+/3-)
Ormancio Ortega	Spain	28 Mar 1936 (2+/2-)
Lawrence Ellison	USA	17 Aug 1944 (2+/2-)
Eike Batista	Brazil	03 Nov 1956 (1+/3-)
Stefan Persson	Sweden	04 Oct 1947 (2+/2-)
Li Ka-shing	China	13 Jun 1928 (3+/1-)
Karl Albrecht	Germany	20 Feb 1920 (1+/3-)

And, additionally, these were in the list until recently...

Lakshmi Mittal	India	15 Jun 1950 (4+)
----------------	-------	------------------

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

Mukesh Ambani	India	19 Apr 1957	(2+/2-)
John T Walton	USA	08 Oct 1946	(4+)
Ingvar Kamprad	Sweden	30 Mar 1926	(2+/2-)
Rinat Akhmetov	Ukraine	21 Sep 1966	(3+/1-)
Kushal Pal Singh	India	15 Nov 1931	(4-)
Oleg Deripaska	Russia	02 Jan 1968	(2+/2-)
Sheldon Adelson	USA	04 Aug 1933	(2+/2)
David Thomson	Canada	12 Jun 1957	(3+/1-)

That seems a fair sample. Is there a predominance of any one type?

There are 28 names listed above including those in the first list and not including 'Bill Gates' twice. Of that number, there are:

4 who are (- - - -)

4 who are (+ + + -)

10 who are (+ + - -)

4 who are (+ + + +)

6 who are (+ - - -)

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us
Allowing for the 10 x (+ + - -), which might be expected, caused by there being more chances of them occurring than the rest, although their number is still slightly higher, the spread is exactly as you would expect from randomness. The individuals above were not selected by anyone. They simply happened to achieve great wealth. Still, it is interesting that there are so many more than you might expect who are (+ + - -).

It is individualism at its best. It is randomness, isn't it? But it is still weird because randomness is what does NOT occur in certain groupings such as elections of popes, presidents and prime ministers and the like when the individual has to rely on others for his success. Then, something else is happening; I call it EMF recognition.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

When people are being 'chosen', it is their 'force field' that is being recognised even though it is often masked by personality or sun sign traits. When people are attracted to one another and come together for a common purpose they soon know if they can achieve the objective set for the group as the truth behind their masks becomes more evident in the behaviour determined by their EMF type. Truth to tell, none of the individuals would be able to tell you that. Instead, it would be a feeling caused by what we would say was their 'frustrating behaviour, 'their unreliability', 'their self-centredness', and the rest of the panoply of expressions we would use to identify our struggle with them.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

This has important significance for anyone working in a group situation such as at business or management meetings or running companies, departments and other organisations and committees. Also for sports managers who choose teams. I believe it can determine their success or otherwise and, if understood and known by a participant, can influence that outcome. A powerful tool!

Scales of Electromagnetic Relationships (SER Table)

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us
The Scales of Electromagnetic Relationships (SER Table) show every possible one-to-one combination of relationships, and their outcome, in the form of 'transmitters' (+) and 'receivers' (-). It is the identification of everyone's electromagnetic energy field (EMF), their magnetic polarity. The symbols represent the type of transmitters in each EMF. The red plusses represent propelling, outward, dynamic movement. The blue minuses represent attracting, inward, laconic movement. One pushes, the other pulls. Both are equal and opposite, like two sides of a coin are opposite and equal. Like males and females are opposite and equal. Like fire and water are opposite and equal. As you can see, each person has four poles and it is the balance or imbalance of the blues and reds that determine not only the Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us motivational force behind every human being on the planet but also their interaction with the forces of others.

After working out your polarity and the polarity of another person using figure 1 on page 14, check the level of the relationship on the SER table to discover what level your magnetism is with them and whether on the dynamic or laconic side of the scales, and then read on to discover what the result on the means.

IMPORTANT NOTE:

All relationships are possible. Circumstances overrule the natural complexity so please remember this is 'in the main' (99.9%) and it is wholly concerning magnetic attraction and its effects.

This relationship could end up with one or the other in prison! They are entirely alike in their heading and entirely individual and independent of one another. They are unable to passively coexist because of the lack of any receivers in their make-up. There is room for only one lion in the Pride. I could see these 'working' together for the same company providing they were not either (a) competing with one another or (b) involved too much with each other in the contribution they make for the greater good. Competition would be too great. Being in the same department or one working for the other Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us could be a disaster. As for personal relationships with one another there's a possibility of a very temporary arrangement borne out of natural physical attraction but it will soon be overcome. The problem here is that it is like trying to put two magnets together. They can only push away from the other in the end. Suffice to say I would be very shocked to find such a marriage or partnership of choice that exists!

Overall: Positive relationship; they can work together to achieve the same goal but with no love lost. The only way will be as individual parts and will often clash.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

0-

PASSIVE

(- - - -) with (- - - -)

Well, they can endure each other's company but not for long periods. They will seek out the company of others to counterbalance their relationship by bringing some transmitter stimulation which they really need. Rather than antagonising one another, as those with four transmitters do to one another, these souls have nothing between them to ignite or spark the relationship. It will be rather like trying to strike a light with a damp match. This will be an extremely laconic relationship because neither party can do enough to stimulate let Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us alone sustain the interest of the other. Both need energy to be directed at them not the other way round. This does not mean they will undermine one another – there won't be enough energy to be bothered. Living together, they will get along but there will be no sense of energy or drive. They will each just get on with things like two magnets of the same polarity which don't magnetically connect. In other words live and let live taken to extreme.

Overall: Passive relationship; they will fail to work together as a team or partnership as neither will provide any spark at all but both will be absorbing whatever energy there is around them

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

1+

ACTIVE

(+ + + +) with (+ + + -)

This will be a very feisty relationship. Each will be highly individual and dictatorial towards the other. Lots of clashes and energy exchanges. They stimulate each other especially at the beginning of the relationship as they are naturally attracted to one another due to the flow of the energy source of the one extra transmitter matched by the one receiver, but it will always lead to bust-ups and, perhaps, even worse. They bounce off one another rather than being able to find common ground for agreement. Not a natural electromagnetic success but they have a natural electromagnetic Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us attraction made possible by the one receiver but there is too much dynamic energy between them for there ever to be any long bouts of peace and happiness. On the other hand, in a working relationship, especially where they are part of a larger organisation - also, if they are part of a sales team - they can drive or stimulate each other to success like no other.

Overall: Lots of sparks fly. High failure probability. The passive energy of one receiver between them provides the only breathing space. The problem is a lack of receiver energy.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

PASSIVE (- - - -) with (+ - - -)

A very poor relationship in prospect as far as energy goes. That doesn't mean they won't be attracted one another. They will be but because they recognise themselves in each other as energy receivers. Initially, they will get along but there's so much pulling there will be little to ignite or sustain the relationship. As a work relationship there is greater possibility for success but it will depend largely on the circumstances. As colleagues on the same rung they will have an agreeable pathway but one in charge of the other will lead to extreme dissatisfaction. Yes, they can be reasonably good together Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us and as office workers in particular but only for short bursts. They will get along but they will never survive in sales let alone be employed together in sales. They need their own space to survive. On the other hand they have a natural affinity for one another. That one extra '+' stimulates the interest between them but although they can be great friends it can only ever be that providing there are lots of times of separation.

Overall: A highly passive relationship. Initially the one plus will help spark some activity but it will be a very lack-lustre affair.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

2+

ACTIVE

(+ + + +) with (+ + - -)

This is certain to be another feisty relationship. As with a 1 on the scale they will be very individualistic and dictatorial towards one another. Lots of clashes and energy exchanges. However, unlike a one relationship, there will not be any natural attraction to one another because the two Receivers type will feel they are giving in too much. It will be more competitive and from the success or failure of that issue alone can emerge the possibility of a relationship. However, this is going to be tough going. Toleration is about the only thing that might see them through or long periods of Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us separation. Working together they make a good combination and can together bring a lot of positive energy to any team environment. 2+/2- types in charge of 4+ types will have less success than the other way round. 4+ types can't take orders – they only like to give them.

Overall: Sparky relationship; tendency to give way to one another; strong. Both inclined to the same thing or attitude at the same time.

PASSIVE

(+ - - -) with (+ - - -)

Unlike their opposites, the (+ + + -) matched with (+ + + -) whose electromagnetic energy is medium low Active which can make things happen, these couples are desperately waiting for something to happen. And they will be waiting until hell freezes over because neither of them can be expected to provide that necessary extra spark. They are High Passive and can make it but without the balloons and decorations. Although they both have the same EMF, they both pull whatever energy there may be towards themselves individually unable to allow the other to take precedence and when other

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us
electromagnetic force comes towards them they will fight over who receives it. They are like train-track rails – connected but separate. They can make very good working relationship partnerships but not when one is in charge of the other. They are reliable so they make good team supports.

Overall: Need an extra spark to stimulate the promise; Kind in their manner and retiring; inoffensive, friendly; nothing to excess.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

3+

ACTIVE

(+ - - -) with (+ + + +)

This is one relationship I can almost guarantee will end up in tears. The magnetic attraction of the minuses for the plusses and the power-freaking plusses over the minuses is strong and will make this relationship explosive or painful or both. Naturally attracted to each other initially, the power play and chicanery soon takes over and this means they will be very temperamental. The electromagnetic energy waves are seemingly able to correspond but the final outcome is two poles of similar polarity with nothing left to release them. Three receiver types can Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us be extremely stubborn and moody even to a point of aggressiveness and four transmitter types can be very tiring as they are relentless in their pursuit to dominate. The four transmitter types will tire of the passiveness of the three receivers type. The reason for the initial attraction is obvious given their electromagnetic make-up but it also ensures negation through a lack of an inlet valve in the 4 transmitters type.

Overall: Positively charged relationship; not able to operate independently of one another.

3-

PASSIVE

(+ + - -) with (- - - -)

Yes, these are reasonably good together. Occasionally there may be outbursts as the overall tendency is one of being passive and the two plusses may give rise to feelings of frustration at times. There is a good amount of give and take but when there is too much of the latter as can be the case there may be flare-ups. However, they will soon die down as both parties are recessive and given to a reasonably peaceful co-existence. This is in direct contrast with those who are 3 Active. Those who are 3 Passives are better equipped to succeed because there are fewer transmitters, which allows more energy to exchange whereas with 4 transmitter types there is no inlet valve.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

Overall: Positive and strong relationship;
they work together as a team and individually contribute to the success of the partnership

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

4+

ACTIVE

(+ + + +) with (- - - -)

Although they are balanced and equal to one another they are placed on the positive, active, expulsive side of the scales as the dominant plusses will electrify their relationship making it sparkle whilst that will only be a subterfuge as the recessive minuses will be pleasantly absorbing all the energy. They get on well together but the energy fields nullify one another. One gives, the other takes. There's little left over to do anything more. They can work as a team and be reasonably successful together but the lack of an additional spark will cause

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us
them to irritate each other from time to time but without malevolence. As the song says:
“they go together like a horse and carriage” but in this case they are pushing and pulling in the same direction so they could do with a driver!

Overall: Positively charged relationship; they are able to combine their talents automatically, each respecting the work of the other and neither left with the ammunition to cause competition between themselves.

4-

PASSIVE

(+ + - -) with (+ - - -)

This partnership works extremely well. They know how to handle each other when the going gets tough or they have lost patience with each other. Because they are mainly Recessive energy they can absorb antagonism with a shrug. The partner with the two dynamics will be the driver but the real power and manipulation will be coming from the other's three receivers. In their relationships as a couple with others they will appear as two individuals in a unit. There will be no sense of 'clinging' here but there will be a recognisable 'commitment'. The flow of electromagnetic energy is very well balanced, its dynamic strength being

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

Overall: They will be quite well matched.
Although there will be flare-ups from time to time they will work well together and appear so particularly as a couple to outsiders.

ACTIVE

(+ + + -) with (+ + + -)

There won't be any shortness of talk in this relationship. It will be testy at times and sparks will abound. However, each will share the excitement of existence with the other but, the remaining poles being the same, neither party will be able to curtail the excesses of the other. Individualism, though strong here, is not big enough to overlord the relationship. The chances of success are excellent. Both are aiming in the same direction, both will be flexible and show a high degree of tolerance for the other. However, whenever one party or the other oversteps the mark it will be like setting a

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us
lighthouse on fire. And then we will all be friends again.

Overall: Sparks galore but exciting and survivable; Very dynamic relationship.

5-

PASSIVE

(+ + - -) with (+ + - -)

A very safe and secure relationship. Both waiting for the other to drive the vehicle. They are both inter-dependable neither showing signs of superiority. They will be balanced in themselves and bring that together so that they are warm and friendly and not given to excess in their relationship with one another. This is a strong electromagnetic coupling but it lacks a dimension, which only another transmitter can bring. They will languish in the comfort of each other's company but it will never blow the top off the mountain.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

Overall: Balanced in their manner and fair; nothing excessive. No sparks to ignite or destroy. Simple easy-going tit for tat relationship

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

ACTIVE

(+ + + -) with (+ + - -)

A hugely successful EMF attraction! They are very electromagnetically attracted to one another and a very attractive partnership they make too. They work well together. Able to share responsibility. This is one of the most successful relationships of all notwithstanding any idiosyncratic personality traits. Also, because of the predominance of “+” energy, it is a very sparky, energetic partnership. Of all relationships possible, these are the most dynamically magnetically locked. Very strong bonding!

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

Overall: Positive relationship; able to operate independently as well as together. Strongest bonds of all one to one's.

6-

PASSIVE

(+ + + -) with (- - - -)

A perfect relationship! They will thrive on each other's company. There is an abundance of receptive energy that dominates here whilst the active plusses move unrestrictedly in the arena of company, which is something they adore. Those with four Receivers will delight in the sparkling dynamism of the types with three Transmitters. Their one Receiver makes them more sensitive than others for the four Receivers types and the latter positively buzz on this vibrancy. What makes them particularly attractive not only to one another

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us
but as a team is that they are on the Passive side of the scale so they are fearlessly confronting the world around them.

Overall: Positive partnership; they have the capacity for a very successful relationship. One will allow the flightiness of the other to happily run free and they in return will delight in the receptivity of their partner.

7+/-

ACTIVE/PASSIVE

(+ + + -) with (- - - +)

They are in perfect harmony and the attraction will be immediate and lifelong because they balance out. However, unlike other couplets that also balance out, they are unique in that, like hermaphrodite, they are both Active and Passive simultaneously and cancel out the force in each other. Therefore, they are in danger of turning harmony into disharmony at one and the same time. Even in this they will be attracted to one another. They will simply acquiesce or agree to disagree. The three receivers in one will always be the dominant force over the three transmitters in the other whereas it Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us should be the other way round. The three transmitters type can be drained by the enormous power of the other to receive. The three receivers partner is anchor to the other's lightness which can weigh them down if over-domineering. This constant EMF waving I feel this is the reason for their natural tendency to let it be ... whatever the outcome.

Overall: They complement one another perfectly; one harmonizes with the other. This, in turn, can lead to disharmony and dysfunction, which is inbuilt. 7 is it's own opposite – The tail is the head; the head is the tail.

HOW DOES IT COME ABOUT

The EMF code identifies the magnetic poles we carry as a result of our birth on a given date. It comprises the east and the west and uses the astrological assessments relevant to those dates and times.

The code is stamped on us at the near moment of our birth. I believe it is because when waters in the womb break it is like an electromagnetic stamping on the neurons of the brain, and the alignment of the blood's iron molecules, to the earth's magnetic field, at that moment.

Human 'personality' is not the result of the code. Any one of the five types could be a Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us saint or a mass murderer given a variety of circumstances. However, it is vital to understand that it informs personality. For example, all Aries people share common traits, which are slightly different if a male or female, and the code makes them more different still in a way common to others of another sign. It makes 'their bearing' behaviour the most important aspect of their attitude to life.

A classic example can be found in a YouTube video called the Four Horsemen (2007) where renowned thinkers Richard Dawkins, Christopher Hitchens, Daniel Dennett and Sam Harris enjoy a two hours discussion on religion and their position in regards to it. The most striking factor is that they are all born in the sign of Aries with all Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us that that implies. However, note in the conversation the interplay between them when I tell you that 2 of them – Dawkins and Hitchens – are 2+/2- type while Harris is 1+/3- and Dennett 3+/1-. Whilst they each hold their own as Aries types, they interact differently depending on their code, taking their cue from it. Dawkins and Hitchens more acerbic and holding court; Dennett more extrovert unbridled; and, Harris, more constrained and guarded. All exactly as expected.

To understand how, this list shows its placement in our make-up:-

1. Physical: Tall, small, colour of skin, eyes, features, sex, etc.,
2. Genes - inheritance
3. Gender
4. Date of birth – EMF Code

Notes:

In the sequence of prime ministers, from Balfour to Cameron, it is interesting to see who was in the job for the times they were in. From Balfour in 1902, and his famous treaty with Lord Rothschild to Cameron and his first UK coalition government with the Liberals...

Between 1964 and 1997 there were five successive prime ministers and all were 1+/3-

The first three prime ministers of the 20th century covering the period 1902 to 1916 were 2+/2- and not until Blair in 1997 did another appear.

Neither of the two who were 0+/4- (Douglas Home and Brown) were 'elected' PM. They both 'took over' and neither was re-elected on their own merits a short time later.

Magnetically Fated Makes People Like Us

During the world war years the people elected 3+/1-. In WW1 it was Lloyd George who saw it out and in WW2 it was heralded by Chamberlain and brought to its conclusion by Churchill. In both cases they were unceremoniously thrust out and replaced by 1+/3- types; Baldwin in the former and Atlee in the latter.

Whilst it's important to understand why and how one-to-one relationships work, the polarity code is even more powerful when applied to teams.

Why were Apple, Google, Virgin, Facebook destined for success?

What made the 1927 New York Yankees the best baseball team of all time?

Why did Manchester United drop from 1st place to 7th place after the retirement of Sir Alex Ferguson?

What if you could predict the scores of a match or the outcome of a corporate pitch before the start?

And what if you could create a winning world cup team?
